Team Miniature-octo-telegram: Nicholas Ng, Jason Chua, Reo Kimura, Jonathan Buhler

Overall, our team accomplished most of the things that we expected to. We achieved core functionality with a structure similar to what we initially imagined.

Changes:

1) Originally, we planned to allow the user to determine the amount of stories that were shown on the home.html page. We ended up removing this functionality due to time constraints.
2) We also removed timestamps because we realized that by running through the tables linearly, the posts would automatically be displayed chronologically.
3) We ended up adding a comment.html page where users would be able to post additions to specific stories. The use of this page was overlooked during initial planning.
4) Finally, we did not implement the deletion of stories. This was due to time constraints as our group placed a higher emphasis on debugging core functionality.